For the busy business traveler

We admit it; we love shopping with RedEnvelope. Launched in 1999, the online retailer offers a variety of unique, stylish gifts for every occasion. This year, we picked the Italian Leather Travel Wallet for business travelers. This exclusive wallet, crafted in Naples, keeps travel documents neatly organized with a large sleeve for airline tickets, a passport pocket, nine smaller pockets for business and credit cards and a hidden pocket for cash. This gift is available in black or burgundy and is delivered in RedEnvelope's signature gift box tied with an ivory ribbon.

For the executive with a clunky PDA

Sure, the PDA is a powerful, all-in-one device, but does it have to be so cumbersome? Enter the BlackBerry Pearl, a slim, eye-catching device that will make other smartphones jealous. It's packed with features, including e-mail, text- and instant-messaging capabilities; a Web browser; a 1.3-megapixel digital camera with built-in flash and zoom; a multimedia player that plays videos, MP3s and other music formats; and an organizer with an address book, calendar and memo pad. It's the perfect combination of business and pleasure.

And it's compact enough to fit on any shelf or desk. With cross-cut action, this powerful shredder is also a smart deterrent to identity theft.

For your business rival

Bury the hatchet and offer a sign of peace in the form of an olive-branch wreath. For thousands of years, the olive branch has been the symbol of peace and goodwill. Following that tradition, Lindsay Olives offers 20-inch wreaths that are hand-woven from freshly cut green-olive branches from California. Each wreath comes with a 12-inch, metal door hanger. And you'll be helping eradicate hunger in the United States.
